Personal Performance

The personal performance calculation is applicable to the Variable Annuities only.

Understanding performance. Your personal performance takes into account the timing and amount of your premium and withdrawals. Your personal performance is an approximation of your actual return and will differ from the performance of the subaccounts. We calculate your investment performance using the prior market close values. Performance returns for time periods 12 months or longer have been annualized.

Calculation method. Personal performance calculations are performed using the Internal Rate of Return (IRR) method. This method is used to measure the actual performance return, including the impact of the timing of premiums, withdrawals, and charges.

There are other methods to calculate the personal performance on investments which could provide different results than the IRR calculation. The data used for the calculation(s) is obtained from historical transaction data from the recordkeeping system.

All data represents past performance. Past performance does not guarantee future results. The investment return and premium value of the investment will fluctuate so that an investor's units, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than the original cost. Current performance may be lower or higher than historical performance.
